"I am informed by Mr. Olcott and Mr. Gruber that the interview with the latter in one of last evening's papers quoting him (Gruber) to the effect that I am now insane and that a lunatic committee would be appointed to demonstrate that fact, has no foundation whatever: that Mr. Gruber never made such a statement and that no such course is contemplated.

Sheep Herder Shoots His Employer in Idaho Camp.

Boise, Ida., July 10.-Harry Bock, a sheep man of this city, was killed this morning by his herder, a man named Whipple. The tragedy occurred at one of his sheep camps on Smith's prairie, about fifty-five miles from this city. It was an accident, as the herder did not know an accident, as the herder did not know Bock was at the camp. Seeing him moving about in the dim morning light near a carcass of mutton hanging in a tree he thought it was a bear. He fired and on examination found he had killed his employer, the ball breaking his neck. Bock was visiting his camps and was at this one the evening before. He intended to go to another to spend the night. The herder spent the night with the sheep and erder spent the night with the sheep and was returning to camp to get his break-fast when the tragedy occurred. Bock was 39 years old. "The boiling room lay between the yard and the stable, and the horses reached the latter through the boiling room. The sanitary accommodation was hardly separated from the rooms where the fresh fruit and uncovered jams were kept, and the floors were dirty and undrained."

Another factory inspector found jam pots being washed in "liquid like dark soup, which smelled abominally." The manager informed the inspector that the water was changed "about once a week. When usned out of these evil smelling tanks the pots were allowed to stand until dry, when they were to stand until dry, when they were considered to be ready to receive fresh installments of preserves.

Filthy Bakeries.

Inspectors of bakeries found that it was a frequent custom to bathe the children in them after the close work on Saturdays, and the family's weekly collection of dirty clothing was sorted in the bakeries for dispatch to the laundry.

The sausage factories, says the report, are mostly owned by Germans and are "small, dilapidated and poorly lit and are infested by rats."

PINKERTON'S SAY HOPE IS SYDNEY LASCELLES

Latter's Record Shows He Started Criminal Career in England by Forging Lord Beresford's Name.

Served Term in Prison There — Floated Many Fraudulent Schemes-Got Many Thousands in Boston, Pittsburg and Elsewhere.

(Special to The Herald.)

Chicago, July 10 .- According to the Pinkerton Detective agency, Beresford Hope is none other than Sydney LasCelles, who has had a long and varied career in England and America.

LasCelles' photograph appears in the Pinkerton collection, numbered '490 F." Having forged the name of Lord William V. Beresford to several checks, LasCelles was sentenced to four years' imprisonment in

On the completion of his term he came to America, and located in Boston, where he organized the "Great Magic Kindler company." Having once tried a handle to his name, he found it hard to become a plain commoner again, and took the title of Sir Robert Sanborn.

Departing from the "Hub" with his finances recruited to the extent of $75,000, LasCelles went to Pittsburg, where he organized another company under the name of Sir Henry Vane, R. N. The Pittsburgers having contributed their quota to "frenzied finance,"

Leaving that city in a hurry, he next turned up at Little Rock, rk. There he floated a mining company under the unassuming name

Having relieved the citizens of Little Rock of some of their superfluous wealth, the suave promoter disappeared from the stage, so far as the Pinkerton records show.

The letter heads of the "British-American Securities, Limited," and other companies, on which Hope wrote his letetrs for the inspection of the credentials committee and others, were printed in Salt Lake. O. F. Ball, who printed them, yesterday told The Herald about it.

Hope, while in Salt Lake, carried on correspondence with his Denver wife without revealing his identity. Under the name of Hope he wrote reassuringly that "Dr. Kingsley," whom she had married, was in his employ, and had been sent out on a business trip, and would not desert her. Hope and Kingsley, as explained yesterday, were one and the same.

It develops that Hope was furnishing a daily news service to his West Temple street newspaper organs, which have not yet retracted their repeated endorsements of Hope and his fraudulant schemes.

Joseph E. Caine and Lucien L. Nunn are two men who refused to assent to Hope's propositions.

F. M. Lyman, jr., says he suspected Hope all the time. But Hope got the money.

J. J. Daynes explains that it was not the Clayton Music company, but he personally who gave money to Hope. It was to get the funds for building an apartment house.
